Jogakbo with Ssamsol Technique
With Youngmin Lee

Jogakbo, or patchwork bojagi, embodies the philosophy of recycling, as they are made from remnants of leftover fabric. Thoughtfully arranged shapes and colors in bojagi often show a very modern and abstract compositions.

Ssamsol is a durable and decorative seam technique where you use two different seam allowances. One seam allowance is twice the width of the other one, so it can cover the smaller seam allowance.

Using this Ssamsol technique, Youngmin will teach 'Ssamsol Jogakbo' construction.

Class Fee: $30 for guild members

Materials:

- Fabric- silk organza or oksa or ramie or cotton voile (light weight and plain-woven fabric will work)
- Needle-sharp needle of your choice
- Thread: cellulose fibers (Ramie, hemp, cotton, linen)- cotton thread #40, #50, protein fibers (silk, wool)- silk thread #50
- Pins- Extra sharp pins work better for small pieces and fine fabrics
- Rotary cutter and cutting mat or fabric scissors
- Ruler
- Fabric marking pen or pencil
- Hera Marker or craft awl
- Iron and ironing board
- Threader (optional)
